■ Water savers . . . Vulture Street Smash Repairs' David Stelletos and NoWet's Andrew Zachar.

No water required

TOUGH water restrictions may have put a dampener on car washing, but a southside man believes he has the answer for those who need to keep their vehicles shiny.

NoWet Queensland master franchisee Andrew Zachar said businesses, including West End's Vulture St Smash Repairs, had embraced the product, which lifts dirt away from duco without using water.

"The product was invented 10 years ago in the US and we started out with it this year," Mr Zachar said.

"Instead of pushing dirt around with a sponge like when you put water on a car, the NoWet solution, which is 100 per cent environmentally friendly, lifts the dirt."

Mr Zachar said the product then polished and waxed vehicles, leaving a coating that repelled dirt and protected cars from ultra violet rays.

"The whole concept is to protect the car from the elements."

He said Brisbane City Council and car dealers were also using the product.
